Eric-Justin-Tim:

Just got a call from Rudy:

-He said tomorrow our local counsels in four states are filing federal cases to keep the effort going (I didn't understand merits of cases), and that POTUS was aware of this.

-He said he's optimistic we win in Wisconsin state court tomorrow.

-He also said Boris has been coordinating state elector whip effort and I should connect with he and Christina BOBB.

All I know is tomorrow is Elector Voting Day and that train you hear coming down the track isn't Burlington Northern.

Finally, it looks like Fox News and maybe even Sinclair will take our revised TV spot, so we need to make the call if we're going to go up there too.

How best do proceed tomorrow so we don't look like a donkey show, particularly on the Comms/media front?

Thanks!

From the campaign, regarding the electoral college vote, Justin recommended this:

It is something along the lines of "as contests continue in states the only prudent course was to have electors vote in those places to preserve the campaigns rights."

Simple and not too far out on a limb

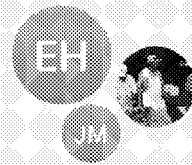

We can do the federal cases by press release.

Justin, I'll call soon and we'll talk with boss

FWIW Maria's producer just called and said they heard an official announcement that we won the election was coming tomorrow, following a call POTUS had with Brian Kilmeade this AM.

I asked if they hadn't been following POTUS' Twitter account. :)

Eric, Justin - just let Tim and I know what to expect for tomorrow - POTUS almost assuredly going to be worked up by the media coverage surrounding electors voting.

It's rather anti-climactic. Throughout the day the electors will vote in each state capital. In AZ WI NV GA MI our slates of electors will also vote. PA probably won't happen. They will be called invalid and out of order (and they're probably right) but Tim has our quote

Like this:

"As election contests continue in various states, the only prudent course was to have the President's electors vote in those places to preserve the campaigns rights."

Does that get the terminology right?

Justin Clark

Yes it does

Now, I am not sure what Rudy is telling the President on this stuff so I'm not sure what his expectations are. Jason any insight?

Jason Miller

Everything I know I spelled out earlier. Was caught a little off-guard by his asking me what was going on.

Justin Clark

Here's the thing the way this has morphed it's a crazy play so I don't know who wants to put their name on it.

Well, that presents a quandary

We'll see if we can get away with attribution to a campaign official

Jason Miller

Eric.

Eric who? There's no Eric on this chain

Eric, Justin - WH will call us back ASAP.

In the meantime, POTUS wants to put out statement on electors, so Rudy making me call into conference call now.

From Boris:

Hey Team - Mayor asked for everyone on this call to get on a quick call.

Can we all dial on at 4pm on this line?

I'm not comfortable putting that statement out.

Jason Miller

You should call Christina OANN and tell her that.

Or Eric, as he's in charge.

So how is this going to work? If we can no longer put Rudy's or Jenna's name on statements, and no one else wants theirs on it, how does this work?

Jason Miller

Eric.

Or Justin.

Nothing stopping Rudy from tweeting it I suppose

EH Of nothing...not even my kids

Dec 14, 2020, 8:35 AM

Seriously, so what do we do with this statement? Put it out as from "Trump Legal Team"?

I can't stand by it. From the looks of it, neither can any of you.

Justin Clark

I cannot. They need to put their names on it. I would put it under Rudy, Boris and Jenna

Eric Herschmann

EH I agree

Okay. So the ban on statements from Rudy & Jenna is lifted?

Justin Clark

I guess - I'm not sure where the ban came from. But they can't anonymously stand behind this garbage

Eric Herschmann

I would tell them that no one is comfortable putting it out and they should issue it directly

As in, on Twitter? I don't believe they have another mechanism to send out press releases except through the campaign's system.

Anyway they want where they feel comfortable supporting their allegations
